

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

In honor of Black History month students across all classrooms learned about the many contributions of Black Americans in the Arts, Science, Politics, and Education. Learning activities focused on diversity, equity, and equality in effort to bring cultural humility into the classroom. These activities exposed students to various books, videos, foods, music and arts, and traditional story telling as well as learning about how Black History month got started, spotlight on current events, and how it is celebrated in other countries such as Canada, Europe, and the Netherlands.

Preparing to Return to School

As students prepare to return to campus, it can be helpful to review some of the new routines and expectations they will encounter.

Below is a link to a great activity you can do at home with your student to help them get ready. The video and discussion questions serve as a social story to talk about social distancing, hand washing, and wearing a mask on campus.

My Butterfly Story by Emma

Room 126 had 5 caterpillars and they were in a little jar with holes on the lid. A few weeks later they grew fat and long. Then they changed into chrysalises that helps them change. We waited for one week for them to hatch. Finally, they turned into painted lady butterflies and they were kept in the green cage. Ms. Yvette made them a solution of sugar water to eat. I loved the butterflies because they make me happy and they're beautiful.
